PROCUREMENT CHECKLIST

Before you shortlist a security provider, ask for the evidence.

Four checks that shorten evaluation, plus the red flags to watch for.

01 INDUSTRY STANDING

NZSA membership.

85%+ of the NZ security industry by revenue is represented by the NZSA.

Ask: are you an NZSA member?

One of the clearest signals of who is fit and proper.

Ask: which standards apply?

Membership carries professional and ethical standards.

WHY IT MATTERS

Membership means the provider answers to an external standard, not just a contract clause.

02 LICENSING

Licensed people, by name.

Every person on site

Not just the company. Ask for each technician who will attend.

Current licences

Under the Private Security Personnel and Private Investigators Act.

Checked before work starts

Licences confirmed at shortlisting, not after award.

WHY IT MATTERS

The people installing and maintaining your systems are individually accountable.

03 PROCESSES & PROOF

Quality, safety and references.

Documented quality processes

How work is checked, commissioned and handed over.

Documented safety processes

Site safety plans that match your facility's rules.

Relevant references

From the same type of facility you are tendering for.

WHY IT MATTERS

Evidence up front means a shorter evaluation and fewer back-and-forth queries.

04 RED FLAGS

When to look elsewhere.

- Can't name who will be on your site
- Licences promised "on award"
- No written quality or safety process
- References from unrelated work only

For government and critical infrastructure buyers, this verification is often a gate, not a bonus.
